

Australian Alert Service - feature articles - strategic

The 'Temple Mount Plot' dossier

This dossier collects research and warnings made 24 years ago, that high-level British establishment figures were inciting a religious war between Israel and the Palestinians. The focus is the Temple Mount (al-Haram ash-Sharif) in Jerusalem, the site of Islamic holy sites where Jewish radicals and literalist Christians want to rebuild King Solomon's Temple. That "Temple Mount Plot" has now born terrible fruit: the role of provocations on the Temple Mount in triggering the Israel-Hamas war and the Israeli military's current slaughter of civilians in Gaza is no secret. The dossier, however, lays bare the deeper springs of this war, and the danger of its exploding into World War III—an eschatological, or "End Times", ideology on the part of both the would-be Third Temple builders, and of their higher-up patrons and instigators.

Click here for the table of contents and to access the dossier.

---

Series: The roots of the Taiwan conflict

Part One: Origins of the Kuomintang

Part Two: The US hand in China's civil war

Part Three: The Kuomintang retreat to Taiwan

Part Four: The China Lobby

Part Five: KMT and US intelligence agencies collaborate

Part Six: US-China 'normalisation' and provocations

Part Seven: Taiwan exports political warfare

More, coming soon...

---

Series: What is NATO?

Part 1: Franklin Roosevelt's economic development policies vs the Anglo-American financial empire (AAS, 18 May 2022)

Including: FDR's Post-Colonial Vision Challenged Churchill

Part 2: FDR fought to end the British Empire: China and Iran (AAS, 25 May 2022)

Including: The Hurley memorandum: Freeing Iran from British imperialism

When the United States offered a 'Belt and Road' to China

Part 3: When the United States Offered a 'Belt and Road' to China \(continued\) (AAS, 1 June 2022)

Part 4: Churchill sought World War III against USSR in 1945 (AAS, 15 June 2022)

Including: Churchill's 'Iron Curtain' speech

Marshall Plan: 'European integration', keeping Russia out

Part 5: How the British Empire wrecked Russian-American cooperation and launched the Cold War (AAS, 20 July 2022)

Part 6: How the British Empire wrecked Russian-American cooperation and launched the Cold War \(continued\) (AAS, 27 July)

Additional reading:

The coup, then and now (July 2017)

---

The Lowy Institute: an Anglo-American foreign influence conduit

In a three-part series by Melissa Harrison, published August-September 2022, the Australian Alert Service exposes how the Lowy Institute, Australia's influential foreign policy think tank, furthers Anglo-American geopolitical agendas. People worried about foreign influence over Australian policies should take a hard look at this organisation.

The Lowy Institute claims to be independent, but its board is dominated by a secretive group of international advisors from the US and UK establishment, alongside associates of founder Frank Lowy, the Westfield shopping magnate. The board sets the institute's "strategic direction" and "research priorities". The Institute belongs to the "Council of Councils", set up by the New York Council on Foreign Relations (CFR) for—in its words—"consensus-building among influential opinion leaders" and, ultimately, "injecting" its conclusions into high-level foreign policy circles in members' countries.

The think tank works with US policymakers like the "Asia Pivot" architect, former Assistant Secretary of State Kurt Campbell, who promote military interventionism in the Asia-Pacific, aimed at confronting China. In 2017 the Lowy Institute acted in lockstep with the "China threat" propaganda campaign, conducted by government intelligence staffers, other think tanks (the AAS has written extensively on the role of the Australian Strategic Policy Institute, ASPI), and the mainstream media. Lowy's funding sources include two Australian intelligence agencies, while several staff members formerly worked for the Office of National Intelligence, the top Australian government intelligence agency—a typical "revolving door" relationship between this establishment think tank and the Anglo-American-guided intelligence community.

Download the series here, for a detailed look into this powerful, unelected organisation.

---

Sleepwalking into nuclear World War III?

14 Jan. 2022—In an eight-page strategic package, the Australian Alert Service of 12 January 2022 presents the latest events and essential background on the showdown between NATO and Russia that sharply escalated at the end of 2021.

- "Anglo-American war hawks push showdown with Russia" reports on a promising, but stark joint statement issued 2 January by the five permanent members of the UN Security Council (P5), all of them nuclear-weapons powers: "We affirm that a nuclear war cannot be won and must never be fought". The P5 statement is welcome in the context of a blistering surge of military-strategic tensions. We show that, contrary to US State Department and major media insistence that the issue is Russian plans to "invade Ukraine", the underlying situation is that Russian officials believe the "red line" President Vladimir Putin has talked about has been reached, with the approach of "threatening weapons systems" to Russia's borders. On 15 December Moscow offered the USA and NATO draft written agreements for mutual security guarantees, which were to be at the centre of diplomatic meetings on 10-13 January.
- The background article "Sleepwalking into nuclear World War III, 1990-2021" reviews the broken promises and step-by-step movement towards a global showdown, ever since the first Bush Administration in 1990 pledged to Soviet leaders that NATO would not expand eastward after German reunification. We review how Ukraine is far from being a fledgling democracy just minding its own business while under threat from Russia. Also included is a bibliography, with links, of AAS articles on the crisis in Europe and around the Black Sea as it unfolded in 2021.
- The first Washington Insider column this year is titled, "Biden is not in lock-step with war party".

Click here to download the package.

Additional reading:

AAS articles from 2018-2022, showing why NATO's eastward expansion and activities led Russian officials to assess that the national security "red line" President Vladimir Putin talks about has been reached.

- 7 March 2018 - Russian President delivers reality shock
- 14 April 2021 - Escalation in Ukraine threatens East-West conflagration
- 5 May 2021 - Russia's 'red lines': Don't dismiss as bluff or bluster
- 28 July 2021 - UK-led Black Sea provocations: 'Global Britain' in action
- 10 November 2021 - US and Ukrainian military actions raise Black Sea tension
- 8 December 2021 - Eurasian powers act against headlong war agenda
- 9 February 2022 - China-Russia diplomacy at Olympics—a 'tectonic shift'
- 23 February 2022 - Ukraine on the knife's edge of world war

---

AUKUS accelerates rush towards world war

The 22 September 2021 Australian Alert Service warns that the world is hurtling towards World War III, and Australia under Prime Minister Scott Morrison's direction is hastening that disaster. The AUKUS military cooperation agreement between Australia, the UK and the USA locks Australia into the ambitions of "war-hawk" neoconservatives and liberal interventionists in all three countries, intent on surrounding China with a string of military alliances in the Pacific region.

The AAS features four articles, including a unique analysis contributed by a long-time China hand, Australia's former Deputy Ambassador to China John Lander. They are:

- "War and economic breakdown: How did we get here?" The lead editorial situates the current war drive in historical events since the American Revolution, highlighting the geopolitical interventions of Anglo-American imperial factions that have brought the world to this point;

- “China: Australia squandering 40 years of goodwill”, by John Lander, describes the sabotage of the collaborative spirit that quite recently characterised Australia-China relations, and cites a 1971 cabinet document insisting that especially on such important matters Australia must “formulate independent policies, based on Australian national interests”;
- The basics of the AUKUS agreement, including the deal for Australia to acquire nuclear-powered submarines, are documented in Richard Bardon’s article, “AUSMIN/AUKUS make Australia [a] staging point for WWII”. We report warnings from former Prime Ministers Paul Keating and Kevin Rudd and leading strategic analyst Hugh White;
- Our Washington Insider column provides a perspective from the USA under the headline “Did ‘Operation Hookless’ hook Biden?” It considers moves, in addition to AUKUS, towards greater integration of Australia into the American military-industrial complex; outrage on the part of “permanent warfare” advocates at President Biden’s evident seriousness about ending overseas deployments like the 20-year Afghanistan engagement and possibly edging in the direction of dialogue with China; and the interplay of “Global Britain” ambitions from within the UK, where the head of Chatham House gloats that through AUKUS the UK can—without inordinate spending of its own—exploit American and Australian forces to place itself front and centre of what happens in the Indo-Pacific.

Click here to download the PDF.

Additional reading:

‘Black-is-White’ Paper singles out Russia, China as threats to ‘global order’ (30 March 201)

---

Special Report on Xinjiang: Anglo-Americans sponsor ‘East Turkistan’ campaigns

An eight-article series from the Australian Alert Service in November 2020–March 2021, “Xinjiang: China’s western frontier in the heart of Eurasia”, is now assembled as a 40-page Special Report.

Download it here.

---

The China Narrative (series)

Clive Hamilton’s books exposing China “interference”, Silent Invasion and Hidden Hand, are important, not because of the quality of the content—paranoid propaganda—but because the influencers behind Hamilton’s crusade reveal his role as a cog in a vast narrative-management machine. The public, as well as MPs and other government officials, are being directed how to think about China by a small group of ideologically driven propagandists, funded by institutions of the section of the Anglo-American power establishment that seeks war without end, even risking nuclear warfare that would annihilate mankind.

Download the full series in one PDF.

Read the html version.

---

The Christchurch massacre: British imperial ‘population control’

AAS articles from 2019

Following the horrific attacks at the Al Noor and Linwood Islamic Centre mosques in Christchurch, New Zealand on 15 March, in which 50 people were killed and another 50 wounded, New Zealand’s police arrested a fanatical, self-proclaimed white supremacist ethno-nationalist and eco-fascist, Brenton Tarrant, as the perpetrator. Parallels with earlier mass shooters and other killers were immediately obvious: like the American Unabomber Theodore Kaczynski, who killed and maimed scientists and industrialists in 1978-95, Tarrant authored a radical environmentalist tract; like the murderer of 77 in Norway (2011) Anders Breivik, he espouses race hatred and admires fascists; like the killers of nine people at an African-American church in South Carolina (2015) and 11 at a Pittsburgh synagogue (2018), he targeted people for their religion and ethnicity; like school shooters in Europe and the USA, he killed children. ...

What is the 'Third Force' fuelling US unrest?

STOP M15/M16-RUN TERRORISM

What is the 'Third Force' fuelling US unrest?

9 June—Mass demonstrations in Minneapolis, Minnesota began on 26 May the day after an African-American man, George Floyd, was killed by a policeman arresting him for a petty crime, who knelt on his neck for nine minutes as Floyd gasped, "I can't breathe." Within days the protests embraced dozens of American cities. In several cities they turned violent, images of a burning police precinct building in Minneapolis and shop windows smashed along New York City's Fifth Avenue were broadcast around the world.

The basis for protesting was discussed in the AAS last week: "COVID-19 has not only exposed the dangerous failures of our [healthcare and other] infrastructure, but those of the everyday conditions of life for most of our citizens. What was already a shocking degree of unemployment has risen to the levels of the Great Depression or worse. In addition, the disproportionately high number of deaths of Blacks and other minorities in the pandemic has delivered them a heavy blow". ...

Yet the sudden turn to violence appeared well prepared, and police actions it was met with not the single but a further escalation of political tensions, including extreme demands like the Minneapolis City Council's invitation to disband the city's Police Department altogether.

Time and again, where social conflicts pour out into the streets, recent decades have seen explosive manipulation through some behind-the-scenes "third force". In the early 1960s, when the Republic of South Africa was on a course of political reform, leading to a multi-racial political structure, "black on black" terror attacks repeatedly drove the situation towards bloody violence. The most outstanding recent example is the Madison Capital in November 2013/February 2014. There some people in Kiev's central square protesting corruption and demanding better living standards, but what drove events to the overthrow of the elected President of the country was the killing of a handful people, mostly protesters. But also some police, by undisciplined actions positioned in high buildings; it was blamed on the government. Years later,

Christchurch 'Accelerationist' murderer sought 'civil war' in USA

Excerpted from "The Christchurch massacre: British imperial 'population control'"; AAS, 24 April and 1 May 2020. Key phrases are highlighted in boldface.

We showed in Part 1 that in the manifesto Breton Tarrant posted just before beginning to shoot people at the Al Noor Mosque in Christchurch, New Zealand, he, or whoever else may have drafted it, used the language of the UK's Black and Asian Institute of Human Relations to proclaim the purpose of the slaughter. It was intended, said the manifesto, to precipitate the formation of "a crucible of civilisation" (Tarrant's "global events") by unleashing a series of similar events, bringing about "transformative times" (Tarrant's "radicalism"), to achieve "great and heroic change" (Tarrant's "paradigm shift") in Western society and global politics as a whole. He wanted, "non-racial, de-stabilise and deconstruct society", including through "racial, violent change".

Throughout the manifesto, its author or authors state that the USA is where this should happen, above all: "Civil war in the so-called 'West' that is the United States should be a major aim in overthrowing the global power structure and the West's [sic] capitalist, individualist, globalist dominant culture".

part", that someone has in foreign policy posts, Breton Tarrant has made the US political scene more polarised by the day. L. J.

Harlan Ullman is a retired military commander who now works with the war-mongering, British government-funded Atlantic Council in Washington and has claims to being the National Defence University's author of the "Black and Asian" doctrine of an ever-escalating display of force, used in the Iraq War. Ullman... proclaims, as in this 1 April 2019 tweet, that "a second American civil war has broken out that, while explicitly different from 1961, could be the nation's last as our system of checks and balances is discredited and eroded". Another ex-British colon official, Michael Malval, opened in a recent web TV interview that "we see low-intensity conflicts breaking out here, there, and everywhere... The elements that set up to the original Civil War in the United States are all there".

Tarrant's call, in his manifesto, for racial attacks and to impose fascist-style governments in countries around the world, under the pretext of responding to a conspiracy of Christchurch-style events, L. J.

The Tarrant manifesto is written partly in QAnA format in answer to "Who did you carry out the attack?", the final message given in "... create conflict between the two ideologies within the United States on the ownership of firearms in order to further the social, cultural, political and racial divide within the United States. This conflict over the 2nd Amendment is the right to bear arms will ultimately result in a civil war that will eventually culminate in USA along with the West".

(The full text part AAS article, with supporting material, is available at <https://www.aasjournal.org/aas/2020/04/24/christchurch-attack/>)

Pursuing the Civil War II

Talk of "rager" and "civil war", with either of those becoming leading to police state, is no longer rare in the UK and the USA, nor are scenarios for their launch. In the United States, "civil war" has been raised not only in a recent like Tarrant's manifesto, but in general political discussion.

The "civil war" rhetoric goes back to the sustained Anglo-American media onslaught against Barack Obama. Together with Tarrant's own political weaknesses, against the pro-consumerist "war

AAS 10 June 2020

9 June—Mass

STOP M15/M16-RUN TERRORISM

The Christchurch massacre: British imperial 'population control'

By Alton Douglas and Richard Barton

Following the horrific attack in Christchurch, New Zealand on 15 March, in which 51 people were killed and another 50 wounded, New Zealand's police arrested a fanatical, self-proclaimed white supremacist, neo-Nazi, and neo-fascist, Breton Tarrant, as the perpetrator. Franklin with earlier manifestos and other letters were immediately published. Like the American Unabomber Theodor Kaczynski, who killed and maimed scientists and intellectuals in 1978-85, Tarrant authored a radical, neo-nazist tract, like the murderer of 77 in Norway 2011 in Anden Church, he called Black and Asian and advised tactics, like the killing of nine people at an African-American church in South Carolina 2015 and 11 at a synagogue in Pittsburgh 2018, he target of people for their religion and ethnicity. Like school shooters in Europe and the USA, he talked children.

But the mass killer who almost immediately emerged as the clearest precedent for Tarrant's actions is fellow Australian Martin Bryant, who killed 35 people and seriously injured 19 more on 28 April 1996 in a day-long attack in Port Arthur, Tasmania. It was reported that members of Tarrant's clique at Christchurch, NZ gun club, where he trained for committing his act, had spent hours loading up as their role model in the months before the Christchurch attack. Prime Minister Jacinda Ardern vowed to enact sweeping gun control laws more restrictive than Australian PM John Howard had done following the Bryant massacre.

The comparison to Bryant is apt, starting with a shared pattern of "red flag" that should have—but seemingly didn't—trigger the police at the top of the ranks of not only local police, but also the Five Eyes intelligence apparatus of the UK, USA, Canada, Australia and New Zealand. Like Bryant, Tarrant was a frequent international traveller. The ignored warnings he made reports to the police about the letters before their crime.

Our article "The Christchurch massacre: racial terrorism in the Pacific" (AAS, 27 Mar. 2019) includes a list of those warnings, which have been reported in the media in late March, in Tarrant's case. Ardern had promised already on 25 March that the royal commission would have "a focus on whether our intelligence community was concentrating its resources appropriately, and whether there were any reports that could or should have alerted them to this attack." We wrote:

"The question the commission must answer is this: given the Five Eyes' avowed capacity to collect, store and analyse personal information, and the fact that Tarrant had reported recent focus on right-wing extremists, how is it that they missed... Tarrant, whose racist neo-Nazi movements around Europe, reported contacts with white-supremacist groups, and statements of homicidal intent on web pages should have triggered at least one of the Five Eyes' intelligence agencies to whom Tarrant's views... needs to be considered. Given the historically close information-sharing within Five Eyes, the agencies of the partner

The mass gathering in the Christchurch mass attack had not looked like a peaceful demonstration to the Five Eyes intelligence agencies, as stated out of formal government communications intelligence agencies. The intelligence alliance has the capability to monitor communications of potential terrorist activities.

on the Five Eyes intelligence agencies' history of archiving terrorism both at home and abroad, did some factors within NZS Security Intelligence Service (SIS) and its sister agencies know of Tarrant all along, but let him operate freely for their own shadowy purposes, which allowed him to control his activity?"

The Australian gun-shop owner subsequently observed to the AAS that for questions of the shooting range to have gone to the police about Tarrant and his mates' "breakdown talk—no hint of force, case an exhibitor, separately did, and even brushed off—was "big red flag" there. "No one in Australia or New Zealand would go to the police if they said,

What the royal commission must look at

Ardern released the terms of reference for the royal commission on 16 April. Its assignment is to examine any shortcomings of "like sector agencies" in the run-up to the Christchurch shooting. Although the terms refer specifically to intelligence, which includes members of other Five Eyes countries, which is a deadly omission, there is nonetheless implicit blame for expanding the investigation to Five Eyes. The "scope of inquiry" includes the shooter's time spent in his native Australia. It refers to "his connections with others, whether in New Zealand or internationally." It directs the royal commission to determine "what relevant state sector agencies knew about this individual," and "whether there was any information provided in otherwise available agencies' records and/or shared that alerted them to this attack." While listing the "relevant state sector agencies" in NZ on 2005, Commonwealth Communications Intelligence Centre, and the Australian Office of National Intelligence services, the list may be expanded to include "any other agency whose function or duty... needs to be considered. Given the historically close information-sharing within Five Eyes, the agencies of the partner demonstrations in Minneapolis, Minnesota began on 26 May, the day after an African-American man, George Floyd, was killed by a policeman arresting him for a petty crime, who knelt on his neck for nine minutes as Floyd gasped, "I can't breathe." Within days the protests embraced dozens of American cities. In several cities they turned violent. Images of a burning police precinct building in Minneapolis and shop windows smashed along New York City's Fifth Avenue were broadcast around the world. The basis for protesting was discussed in the AAS last week: "COVID-19 has not only exposed the dangerous failures of our [healthcare and other] infrastructure, but those of the everyday conditions of life for most of our citizens. What was already a shocking degree of unemployment has risen to the levels of the Great Depression or worse. In addition, the disproportionately high number of deaths of blacks and other minorities in the pandemic has delivered them a heavy blow". ...

Anglo-American 'counterinsurgency' planners bring permanent wars back home

AAS 24 June 2020

"Coronavirus is threatening to ignite a tinderbox of grievances in the US. The growing parallels with Iraq, Lebanon and Somalia are real and disturbing.... If the first wave of the coronavirus tsunami was its health effect, the second— economic devastation—may be worse. But there is a third wave coming: the possibility of armed conflict towards the end of this year, when the combined health and economic impacts of the crisis will peak amid the most violently contested presidential election in memory." (Emphasis added.)

This warning—or, was it a threat?—is not the latest bulletin from the Christchurch mass shooter or the Boogaloo Bois armed activists, about whose agitation for "civil war" in the USA the AAS has written. Rather, it appeared in the Australian on 30 May 2020 in a column by the paper's contributing editor for military affairs, David Kilcullen, an Australian Defence Force reserve

STOP M15/M16-RUN TERRORISM

Anglo-American 'counterinsurgency' planners bring permanent wars back home

By an AAS team

"Continues in threatening to ignite a tinderbox of grievances in the US. The growing parallels with Iraq, Lebanon and Somalia are real and disturbing.... If the first wave of the coronavirus tsunami was its health effect, the second— economic devastation—may be worse. But there is a third wave coming: the possibility of armed conflict towards the end of this year, when the combined health and economic impacts of the crisis will peak amid the most violently contested presidential election in memory." (Emphasis added.)

This warning—or, was it a threat?—is not the latest bulletin from the Christchurch mass shooter or the Boogaloo Bois armed activists, about whose agitation for "civil war" in the USA the AAS has written. Rather, it appeared in the Australian on 30 May 2020 in a column by the paper's contributing editor for military affairs, David Kilcullen, an Australian Defence Force reserve lieutenant colonel with PhD in politics specialisation, anthropology/ethnography, who resides in the United States, for three decades. Kilcullen has been at the centre of the Anglo-American policy of permanent war, both in theory and the implementation, which has brought nothing but disaster to the countries involved.

Now, the military-strategic apparatus responsible for so much death and misery in the countries Kilcullen named, and many others, in preparing to apply its formulae back home, Kilcullen's expertise in "counterinsurgency", in the word and others developed in the "War on Terror" period after 9/11 and based in Iraq and Afghanistan, where Kilcullen dissembled. The techniques he practised there are emerging as preferred methods for governments to put down political opposition and mass unrest during a re-emerging economic crisis.

Kilcullen is both an offspring and an operative of the Anglo-American war part that which encompasses both the Arctic an "anti-consumers" who engineered and led the illegal invasion of Iraq in 2003 and "Global interventionism" in the Tom Blair result, who are their allies. Then the war's role was to serve the US Government as an attack was active under both the George W. Bush and the Barack Obama Administrations (2009 to 2017).

The terms of which Kilcullen has been a part are a military strategy aimed at the US-Indonesian financial empire, centred in the City of London and Wall Street, whose leaders believe their power to be permanent. When their system is shaken, as it has been of and on since at least the 1980s, they seek to avoid the interests of nations and their populations. Through their Kilcullen to the attention and the dedication of leading circles in the Anglo-American establishment, over time what should have been the end of the Cold War in 1989-91, to the 1994 "Washington Doctrine". Formulated by Bill Under Secretary of Defence for Policy

Australian counterinsurgency expert David Kilcullen (left) in Iraq in 2007 in his role as a US Special Forces commander of counter-terror in Iraq.

Paul Wolfowitz, who held that position in the George W. Bush Administration (1989-91), it said that no country outside the USA with its NATO allies should ever be allowed to achieve the degree of powerlessness possessed by the Soviet Union, which had just disappeared.

The British in Christmas's one-upmanship made because the basis for regime-change wars around the world, often using the War on Terror as a pretext, and for creating up hostile positions against Russia and China. The domestic conflict of the Washington Doctrine is a device to suppress any opposition to the financial oligarchy and the brutal autonomy it imposes against the population's living standards in favour of banking, speculation, oil-rich markets and banks. Measures range from mass surveillance of people's communications and movements, up to police-state rule and provocations by proxy.

From 'Counterterrorism' to 'Counterinsurgency'

Graduate of the Royal Military College, Duntroon, David Kilcullen served in almost every theatre of the War on Terror, his 21 years with the Australian Defence Force in hot-laked peacekeeping operations in East Timor, Bougainville and the Middle East, as well as a posting to Indonesia for language study in the 1990s. With his PhD dissertation in politics completed in 2000, he and his Indonesian girlfriend were evacuated, Kilcullen being the reputation of an expert in irregular warfare, and in 2004, as a senior analyst at the Australian Office of National Intelligence, he co-edited the Australian Government's 2004 Indoctrination White Paper.

His writings, according to a profile in the New Yorker 2009, were "the most influential of the 1990s 'Washington Doctrine'". In 2004, he worked at the Pentagon as Deputy Secretary of Defense.

A former NATO Security Advisory Board member, Kilcullen has been invited in 2011 at the Pentagon then under Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld to advise on "how to win a counterinsurgency war" in Iraq. He has seven co-authors in five years' Global Security 2002, Operation Enduring Freedom 2002, War on Terror 2002, George W. Bush: Shaping the Future of the World 2002, Black and Asian 2002, The New Yorker 2009.

lieutenant colonel with a PhD in politics (specialisation: anthropology/ethnography) who resides in the United States. For three decades, Kilcullen has been at the centre of the Anglo-American policy of perpetual war, both its theory and the implementation, which has brought nothing but disaster to the countries involved. ...

counterinsurgency.pdf
(281.01 KB)

Click here to download the PDF.

“Global Britain”—the UK imperial faction’s bid to keep worldwide dominance

A dossier of AAS articles:

- 1 Feb. 2017 “Britain to enforce imperial order in face of new era”
- 22 Feb. 2017 “UK plans new imperial trade bloc”
- 5 Jul. 2017 “City scrambles to maintain European supremacy postBrexit”
- 30 Aug. 2017 “A new era of British maritime power”
- 25 Oct. 2017 “Britain’s pivot to Asia is maritime empire Mark II”
- 15 Nov. 2017 “Anglo-Americans revive Quadrilateral Dialogue to set Trump against China”
- 21 Mar. 2018 “Britain’s new mission: global enforcer of ‘democracy’”
- 18 Apr. 2018 “British elite scheme for war, but must contend with Corbyn”
- 25 Apr. 2018 “Turnbull backs May’s imperial drive for global security and trade dominance”
- 11 Jul. 2018 “The City of London’s China pivot”
- 18 Jul. 2018 “Tony Blair rallies to defend globalisation”
- 15 Aug. 2018 “Is imperial strategy driving HSBC’s move to Paris?”

globbrit1-AAS20172018.pdf
(949.45 KB)

Click here to download the PDF.

Additional updates:

- ‘Global Britain’: an attempt to retain power as global balance is disrupted, AAS, 16 Jan. 2019.
- ‘Global Britain’s’ Empire II plan to surround China, AAS, 9 Dec. 2020
- UK-led Black Sea provocations: ‘Global Britain’ in action, AAS, 28 July 2021

Intelligence agencies and terrorism, war

- "The Lapstone set-up: how MI5 tricked Ben Chifley into creating ASIO", Australian Alert Service, 23 September 2015
- "How MI5 created ASIO", Australian Alert Service, 2 August 2017
- British Intelligence reactivates Empire’s tools for worldwide dirty tricks, Australian Alert Service, 30 January 2019
- "Anglo-Americans reap the terror whirlwind", Australian Alert Service, 8 May 2019
- "MI6’s global reach: The story of former British spy Richard Tomlinson", Australian Alert Service, 26 June 2019
- "Australia must break from Anglo-American war machine", Australian Alert Service, 11 September 2019
- "Don't leave Australia's economic future up to spies!", Australian Alert Service, 24 June 2020
- "Drone whistleblower Daniel Hale imprisoned", Australian Alert Service, 11 August 2021
- Scott Ritter: this is ‘how global terrorism is born’, Australian Alert Service, 23 March 2022

Return to Australian Alert Service - feature articles