The fightback against 'bail-in' begins! Demand Senators pass One Nation's bill to stop theft of deposits to prop up banks

Just in time for the financial crisis that is brewing in the global economy, One Nation Senator Malcolm Roberts introduced a bill on 27 February to stop the 2018 APRA crisis resolution/"bail-in" law from being used to seize Australians' deposits.

Bail-in is the policy developed after the 2008 financial crisis by the Financial Stability Board (FSB) based at the Bank for International Settlements (BIS) in Switzerland. It was devised to rescue failing banks by either writing off, or converting into worthless shares, a percentage of the deposits in the banks.

Since the policy was announced in 2011 bail-in has been legislated in the EU, the USA, the UK, Canada, Japan and New Zealand. It has been used, in various forms, to prop up banks in Cyprus in 2013, multiple times in Italy and Spain, and in Portugal, Austria, Slovenia, the Netherlands, Denmark and other countries.

A few weeks after the shocking 2013 bail-in of two banks in Cyprus, which was the first time most people heard of bail-in, the FSB stated in a 15 April 2013 report that "[bail-in] legislation is in train in ... Australia". From that time, the Citizens Party (formerly CEC) spearheaded an intense political fight to stop bail-in in Australia.

2018 Crisis Management Act

On St Valentine's Day 2018, the Coalition government rushed a bill into law, now known as the Crisis Management Act, to conform Australia to the FSB's agenda. It amended the Banking Act 1959 to give Australia's bank regulator APRA sweeping powers to resolve banking crises, including specific powers to order bail-ins. The government, Treasury, APRA, and the RBA all claimed that the powers would apply only to financial instruments known as hybrid securities, nicknamed "bail-in bonds", which have bail-in triggers in their terms and conditions. However, the language of the legislation is very broad, and where it specifies that conversion and write-off applies to the hybrid securities, it adds: "or any other instrument". A legal opinion obtained by the Citizens Party confirmed the danger that this broad language could be applied to deposits. The government snuck its bill through the Senate before One Nation had time to move an amendment to exclude deposits.

Since the law passed, independent economist John Adams and banking expert Martin North have exposed how the loophole could be used to bail in deposits, through APRA's power to make the banks change the terms and conditions of their deposit accounts to include bail-in terms, without notice. Adams and North reported in a 9 February video post on their YouTube channel, In the Interests of the People, that this process is under way (watch Australia's Banks Are Preparing To Bail-In Retail Bank Deposits).

Banking Amendment (Deposits) Bill 2020

The Citizens Party helped One Nation draft the Banking Amendment \(Deposits\) Bill 2020, which stops any bail-in of Australian bank deposits. The Explanatory Memorandum states:

"This bill will avoid doubt as to the meaning and intent of various provisions in the Banking Act 1959 in relation to bail-in. The effect of the Banking Amendment (Deposits) Bill 2020 will be:- 1. to confirm that the conversion and write-off provisions of the Banking Act 1959 do not apply to deposit accounts as defined in the bill; and 2. to confirm that nothing in the Banking Act 1959 or any other Commonwealth legislation extends power to APRA to implement or authorise or direct the implementation of bail-in in respect of deposit accounts as defined in the bill.”

Put simply, the government claims its 2018 law cannot bail in deposits, but its assurance is not reflected in the language of the law; therefore, Senator Roberts’ bill applies an abundance of caution to make the government’s assurance explicit in the law. If the government is genuine, it will support this amendment, and thus guarantee the 2018 law won’t be used to bail in deposits. If the government opposes this amendment, it will expose its true agenda.

The reason for the cash ban is to trap Australians in banks so they cannot escape bail-in and other “unconventional” policies, including negative interest rates. The fight against the cash ban has snowballed into a huge uproar—we need to combine that with the fight to force Parliament to pass Senator Roberts’ bill.

What you can do:

- call and email MPs and Senators and tell them to support Malcolm Roberts’ bill;

TO THE HONOURABLE THE SPEAKER AND MEMBERS OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

This petition of the Citizens Party draws to the attention of the House that:

Australia and the world are facing a new financial crisis, with panicked financial authorities slashing interest rates and trying to stimulate the housing market to save the banks, which are in grave danger from their excessive mortgage lending and reckless and fraudulent lending standards;

Global financial authorities expect Australia to prop up failing banks through “bail-in”—converting bonds and deposits into shares or writing them off—which will enormously damage individual savers, businesses, charities, superannuation funds and all other enterprises which lose their funds;

Legal analysis of the crisis resolution powers legislated secretly for APRA in February 2018 has confirmed they could be used to bail in bank deposits;

The government denies deposits can be bailed in, but admits the law is from the Financial Stability Board (FSB), which applies bail-in to bank depositors;

The FSB and International Monetary Fund are directing Australia to implement stronger bail-in laws like those in New Zealand, the EU and the USA, which all apply to deposits;

To stop this planned theft, we therefore ask the House to:

- amend the 2018 law to explicitly exclude deposits;
- block the stronger bail-in legislation the government is planning;
- rescind APRA’s crisis resolution powers and pass instead the Separation of Banks Bill 2019 to protect deposits from speculation.
